

-through Christ-

The wind blows.
The trees stand together, unfaltering
The birds fly together, unaffected
Even the little ants carry on with their duties
But here I stand, alone

The dark clouds set in.
All other people run into shelter
All animals scamper to safety
All company I have is lost
And here I stand, alone

Lightning strikes, followed by thunder
Every one has gone away
Every creature has hidden from dangers
Every single soul stands apart from me
So here I stand, alone

Tear drops, or was it rain
Rushes down into the vast plain
Rushes deep within my heart
Rushes so quickly beyond words
For here I stand, alone

But even as I stand alone
In the wind, in the dark, in the danger, in the rain
Even when I think I am alone
Even when I have lost all hope,
One stands by me

He has stood by me all this while,
Waiting for me to notice him
He has patiently watched me cry
Wanting to take all the sorrow from me
But only if I let him

And now, when everyone else has left me behind
I have found my true friend
The one through whom all my troubles will disappear
The one who will never leave me to stand alone
My sufferings, my pains, my hardship,

I offer
Through Christ